ABSTRACT

Stochastic volatility models are of considerable current interest in empirical finance following the seminal work of Engle (1982). In this talk I will discuss a class of semiparametric ARCH(∞) models, with particular attention to the “news impact function”. We’ll see how this can be estimated, and assess how the model performs by applying the method to S&P500 index return data.